Organisation 1: Rayton Home Bakery

Small Business

Rayton Home Bakery is a bakery located in the area and supplies fresh baked goods including cakes, cupcakes, bread and biscuits to the local community.

Organisation 2: Rayton Community Care Centre

Type: Non-Profit Organisation

Rayton Community Care Centre is a community-based organisation which gives assistance to those in need by means of community programmes, food support, clothing drives and voluntary activities.

A website is appropriate for both organisations since they need to communicate information to their target audiences and also offer people a simple means of getting in touch with them.

PROPOSAL 1

Rayton Home Bakery is a small, local spot that brings fresh baked goods to the community—think cakes, cupcakes, breads, biscuits, and all kinds of treats. We're looking to build a website that gives the bakery a polished online look, while making it easy for people to find what they need.

The big idea here? Help customers get clear info about everything the bakery offers, plus an easy way to ask questions or place orders without any hassle. We're thinking about busy families, students, local businesses, or anyone hunting for something sweet for birthdays, weddings, or other special moments.

The site will have at least five main pages. There'll be a Home page that shows off the bakery and its most popular items. The About page will share a bit about the bakery's story and what matters to the team. On the Products page, folks can browse everything on offer, with descriptions and appetizing photos. Customers can reach out on the Enquiry page for questions about products, prices, or placing orders. And the Contact page will give all the ways to get in touch, a handy form, a map, and info about multiple locations if needed.

We'll keep things simple—clear headings, easy language, good imagery, and straightforward navigation. All images will be properly sourced, and we'll make sure the site is tested so everything works and displays as it should.

The main goal? Build a site that works smoothly for both the bakery and its customers. We'll know we've nailed it if people can easily find what they're looking for, reach out without frustration, and explore the bakery's offerings without any confusion. The backbone of the site will be good, clean HTML, with plans to bring in CSS and JavaScript later to polish up the look, add responsiveness, and boost functionality.

Rayton Community Care Centre is a non-profit dedicated to helping people in our community who need a hand. Whether it's food parcels, clothing drives, outreach events, or volunteer work, Rayton is there, making real differences every day.

Now, the centre is looking to upgrade its online presence. The idea is simple: build a website that shows who they are, what they do, and how anyone can get involved. This platform needs to speak to everyone—local residents, volunteers, potential sponsors or donors, as well as groups interested in partnering with Rayton. The new website will make it quick and easy for people to see the centre's mission, programs, and community work at a glance.

Here's what the site will include: a Home page with an overview and key activities, an About page that dives into the centre's story and values, and a Programs or Services page explaining exactly how the centre supports the community. There will also be an Enquiry page so people can ask about volunteering, donations, or partnerships, and a Contact page with all the details—addresses, a map, maybe even more than one location if needed, plus a direct contact form.

The tone of the site matters, too. It should be clear, friendly, and easy to understand, so everyone feels welcome. Photos and community resources will help bring the site to life, but only images that are licensed properly, with credits kept on record. A navigation bar will run across every page, so visitors can find what they need without any hassle.

The main aim here is a website that really connects the centre and the people it serves. It should offer clear information, smooth navigation, easy ways to get in touch, and straightforward options for volunteering or sponsoring. First up will be setting up the HTML structure (in Part 1), and then as the project continues, adding in CSS and JavaScript to make the site look and work even better.
